“The Essex-Middle River area”...

is a group of communities in the southeastern section of Baltimore County. Since there are no incorporated cities or towns within the county, all public services are performed by the County Government.

The County operates under a Charter (1956) form of government, with an elected County Executive and a seven member county council, elected by district. The County's general fund operating budget for 1981-1982 is 433.3 million, and a tax rate of $2.98 per $100.00 assessment. Since 1977, it has enjoyed a AA bond rating.

Baltimore County covers 610 square miles, stretching from the Chesapeake Bay to the Pennsylvania State Line, and surrounding Baltimore City on three sides. It fronts 173 miles of Chesapeake Bay tidal waters.

More than 300,000 countians are employed, enjoying a personal annual income of more than $5.6 billion. Some 10,450 firms are engaged in widely diversified types of businesses, trade and manufacturing. Approximately 40 percent of the county's 23,000 industrially zoned acres are still undeveloped.

The county is served by the nearby Baltimore Washington International Airport and major D.C. Airports, the Port of Baltimore, and 2,358 linear miles of hard-surfaced county and state roads.

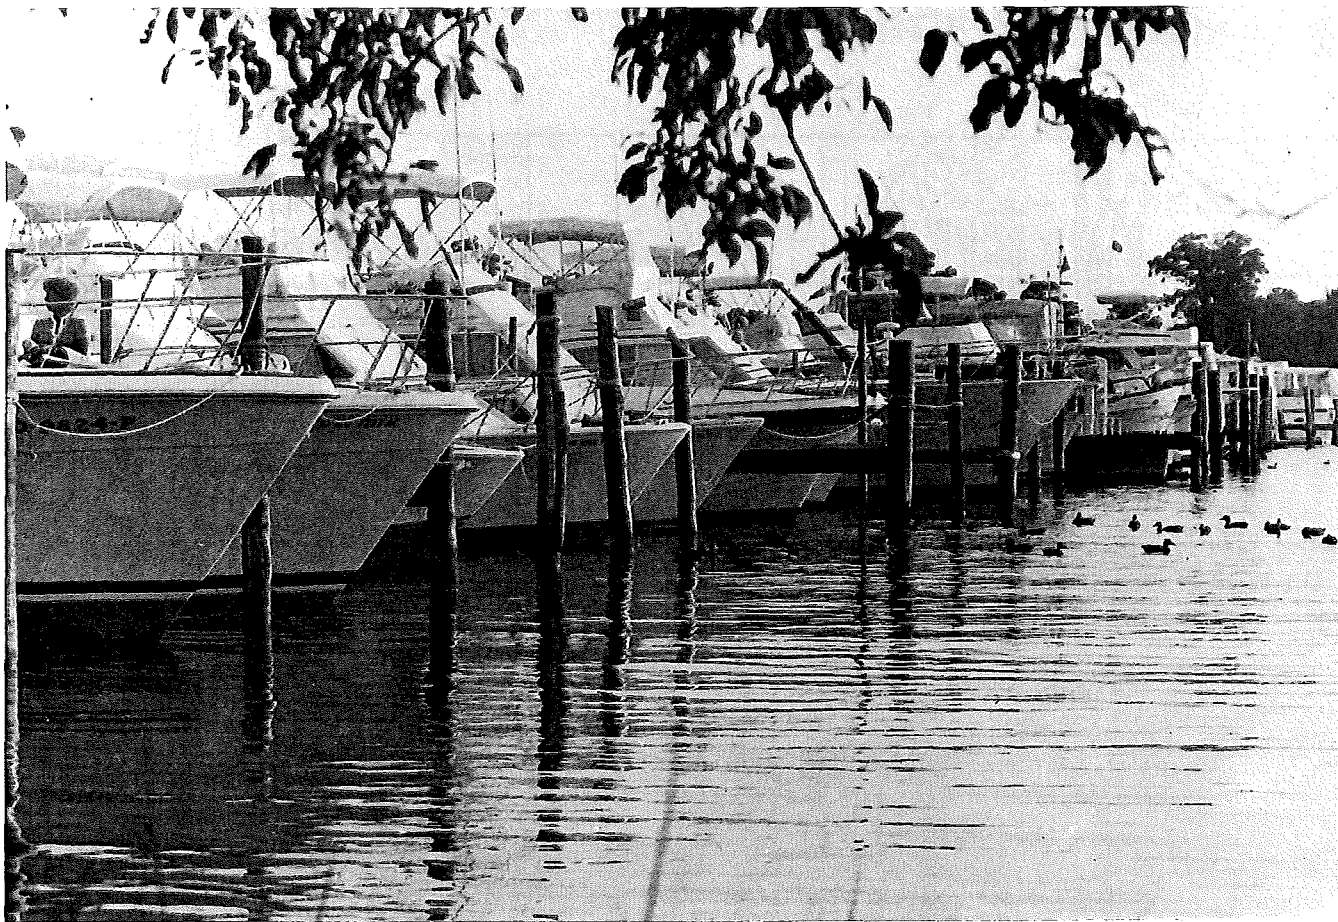

Deep water shipping is available at the Dundalk Marine Terminal, Sparrows Point, Canton, Locust Point and Port Covington. The latter three are operated by Penn Central, Chessie System and Western Maryland railroads, respectively.

The Communities of Essex-Middle River fork into two peninsulas, Back River Neck and Middle River Neck. Southeast Of Back River Neck are the county's only Chesapeake Bay Islands, the Hart-Miller Island chain, the only natural islands near the Baltimore Metropolitan area.

Much of the land on these necks is forested in mixed hardwoods and there are many wooded sections of great beauty. The hollies, for example, are one of the major assets of the Bowleys Quarters community, and provide visual interest where the landscape is relatively flat.

Waterfront dwellings, or “shore homes”, occupy much of the shoreline of the Essex-Middle River area. Though some of these are summer cottages, the majority are year-round homes.

The unique assets of the area, its position as a vital part of the county, and its proximity to Baltimore City, all combine to make Essex-Middle River an excellent place to live or to visit.

A Glimpse of History

The original natives of the area, the Piscataways and Yaocomicos were able to get along reasonably well with the early white settlers. The colonists, like their native neighbors, were farmers and made use of the fertile soil found throughout the area. During the mid 1600's hostilities between the Indian tribes, the Susquehannoughs and the Senecas, involved the white settlers as well and continued into the late 1600's.

With tobacco as the most important agricultural crop and with the absence of roads in the area, the land surrounding the waterways near Gunpowder Falls, Bird River, Middle and Back River became choice locations for planters to ship the harvested tobacco. Because of this choice location, among the numerous land grants that were given to families in the late 1600's and early 1700's, most were given for the region between the Patapsco and Middle Rivers. By 1774, tracts of land in Baltimore County designated as "hundreds" (areas containing approximately 100 families) included Back River Lower and Middle River Lower. These locations were the areas of the two peninsulas from Back River to Bird River as far west as Harford Road.

Iron industry came to the area when the Principio Company, which had a furnace in Cecil County as early as 1725, purchased 1,382 along Back River and Herring Run. At the head of Back River the Principio Company built and began operating a furnace in 1745. As a result of the post-revolutionary war the Maryland Law of 1780 called for the confiscation of British property and the Principio Company holdings were auctioned off. In 1844 the Locust Grove Iron Works began operation along Stemmers Run and continued until 1885.

Early churches in the area were the Orem's Methodist Church, which was established in 1773, and Our Lady of Mount Carmel the first Catholic Church. While records do not show a construction date for Our Lady of Mount Carmel, records show baptisms as early as 1893.

Most of eastern Baltimore County remained rural throughout the 1800's. Farms dominated the area and nearby city residents regarded Essex and its' many miles of shoreline as a recreational area with summer retreats.

Public transportation came to the area in 1895 when street car service was begun by the Baltimore, Middle River and Sparrows Point Railway. At about the same time, an amusement park called Hollywood Park came to the Back River peninsula. People from Baltimore and the surrounding area came to the park via the street-cars to enjoy the rides, the picnic area, fishing, bathing, boating, food and drink. In 1921, fire at Hollywood Park took its toll and the popular amusement and playground area came to an end.

On December 9, 1908, The Title Guarantee and Trust Company of Baltimore issued a policy in the amount of $50,000 to the Taylor Land Company for 12,000 acres known as Paradise Farm. Just six months later in June 1909, surveyors staked out lots along Eastern Avenue for a new development-Essex. In that year, a 50' x 145' building lot could be purchased for $150 and farm land obtained for $100 an acre. The new suburb ran ten blocks in length from Mace to Marlyn Avenues. The corner of Taylor and Dorsey was the site where the first house in Essex was built. The small suburb grew slowly as money was scarce.

Several things occurred around the turn of the century and soon afterward that influenced the change that took place in Essex. The growth of the Sparrows Point Steel Works, first established in 1887 and later purchased by the Bethlehem Steel Company in 1916, brought a large employer to the nearby area. Transportation by trolley to several surrounding points was also available for commuting. In 1919, the Eastern Rolling Mill built its plant at the head of Back River.

The community's first general store was built in 1910 on the corner of Eastern and Mace Avenues by Henry Guttenberger. The grocery store remains standing today and its owner continues to serve the residents of Essex.

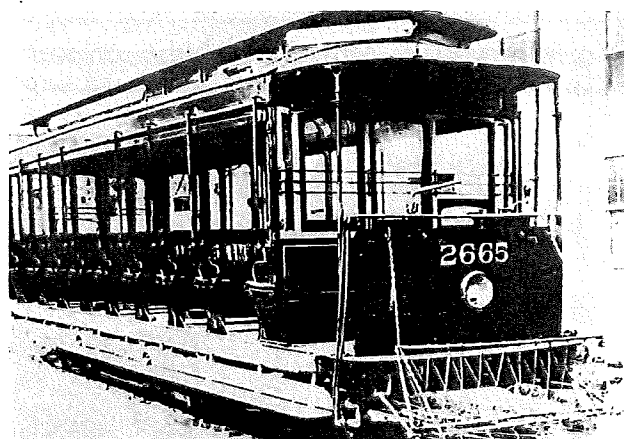

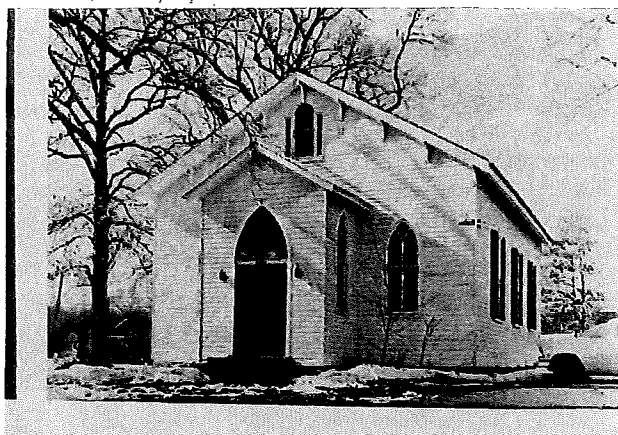

During the years 1911 and 1912 The Taylor Land Company donated lots for the construction of two churches-the Essex Methodist and St. John's Lutheran. The cornerstone for St. John's was laid in September, 1913 and the Essex Methodist was built in the same year.

In 1915 the Essex Vigilant Volunteers donated their 2-story frame fire station in the 500 block of Eastern Avenue. A permanent fire company opened in 1921 an elementary school followed in 1925.

In 1929, WA Crenning purchased 1,260 acres of farm and woodland in the Middle River area. Buildings with 298,000 square feet of factory space were completed before the end of the year. Crenning purchased this land for a Cleveland aircraft manufacturer named Glenn L. Martin. Despite the Depression, the company and the number of employees continued to grow. With employment opportunities in the area, people seeking work migrated from West Virginia, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

By 1931, there were more than 25,000 people in the area called Essex-Middle River and by 1939 the Glenn L. Martin Company was employing 4,100 workers. World War II added an economic boost to the area as the need for steel and aircraft increased. Housing became a problem as employment at the Martin Company reached 53,000 by 1942, prompting the construction of houses in the area and developments such as Aero Acres, Victory Villa and Stansbury Estates.

Public library service begun in 1944 at the corner of Martin Boulevard and Compass Road in Middle River.

"Historical Essex"

This library was successfully operating four years before a Baltimore County Library system was established.

In 1957 in the basement of a store located in the 500 block of Eastern Avenue, fire broke out. Before the 10 alarm blaze was brought under control the business district suffered over $500,000 worth of damage.

Essex-Middle River, as a community of neighborhoods, has survived many setbacks in its history such as the post World War II and Korean War employment decreases, the hurricanes and fires. Despite these setbacks it has continued in its struggle to enhance life for its residents. The Essex Community College began holding its first classes in Kenwood High School in 1957 and expanded in 1960 to the Dorsey Avenue grammar school buildings.

The Essex Improvement Association established itself and incorporated in June of 1961 and in May of 1979 after 10 years of hard work by community organizations, residents, and businesses, the Essex Development Corporation (EDCO) became an official incorporated body. EDCO, sparked by the Essex-Middle River Chamber of Commerce, continues to reflect the drive of Essex-Middle River residents to make the area an even better place to live, to work and to enjoy life.

"Programs and Services for our Elderly"

The Baltimore County Commission on Aging provides senior citizens of our community with innumerable services ranging from health care and financial aid to legal and home maintenance assistance, as well as transportation assistance.

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), located at Essex Community College is a project designed to recruit and train retired men and women aged 60 and over who wish to serve their communities through volunteers activities.

In our area there are four senior citizen centers, three of which offer a hot lunch program as well as education and recreational activities. These centers are located at:

Housing for Senior Citizens

Within the Essex-Middle River Area there are two apartment buildings for seniors 62 years of age and above.

Hopkins Village
Eastern Avenue and Punte Lane

A three story elevator building, this dwelling for seniors has 165 one bedroom apartments, with units for the handicapped. Most of the services offered in the Essex Cooperative are available at Hopkins Village.

Essex Cooperative Apartments
1000 Franklin Avenue

This twelve story building (ready for occupancy in June 1981) offers 209, one bedroom apartments for elderly residents. Twenty-two of the units are especially designed to fit the needs of handicapped persons.

The entire first floor of this building is utilized for recreational and service purpose; it includes a kitchen and dining room, lounge, card and billiard room, beauty shop, and private US postal Service boxes.

Each apartment floor is equipped with coin operated laundry facilities and trash chutes and includes a lounge with a balcony. All elevators accomodate wheelchairs.

In addition to excellent fire protection equipment throughout the building, an emergency call system is located in each bedroom and bathroom. There is an intercom system from each apartment to the office and main entrance. Further security is insured by a door release button on every apartment, and television surveillance of both front and rear entrances.

The Commission on Aging has a list of other rental units in Baltimore County and a list of projects financed through HUD or sponsored by various non-profit organizations.

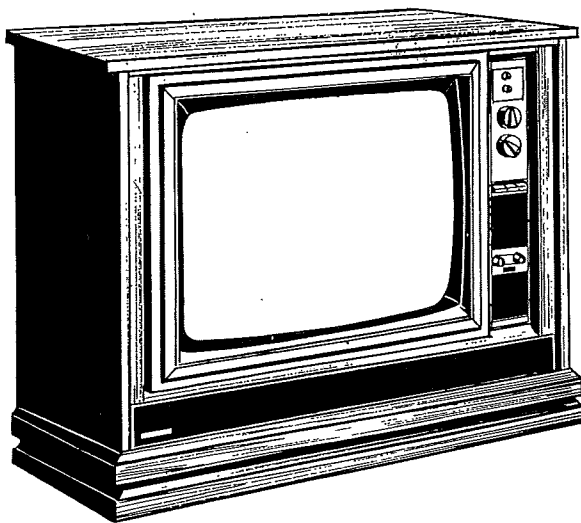

A guide to all services available to senior citizens may be obtained from:

“Providing Jobs for Growth”

Development of industry in the Baltimore area has historically taken place in the broad transportation corridor which extends southwest through Washington, DC and northeast through Philadelphia. Industrial growth has occurred extensively where major rail lines and highways adjoin sizeable tracts of relatively flat land. This growth has been particularly intensive around the Baltimore Harbor in Baltimore City and in Anne Arundel and Baltimore Counties where many rail, highway and water transportation routes converge.

The Physical characteristics of the approximately 40 square mile area comprising the Essex - Middle River community significantly influence land use and are ideal for industrial location. The entire area lies within the coastal plain, an almost flat surface which slopes gently downward from a line east of Belair Road into tidewater. No points within this area exceeds 140 feet in elevation and about half of it lies below the 40 foot contour line.

Location within this coastal plain transportation corridor, and proximity to Baltimore City, are major factors contributing to the growth of industry in the Essex-Middle River area.

Because a healthy community is dependent on the vitality of its industry, the Industrial Commission welcomes your inquiries.

Ballestone Mansion
Rocky Point Park
Back River Neck Road
Open weekdays from 10:00 AM to 4:00 PM

Built on a parcel of land originally granted by Cecilius Calvert in 1659, to William Ball (Great-Grandfather of George Washington), this house is believed to have been erected around 1780. It was a small house which was added on to in later years and is the structure now standing.

The Baltimore County Bicentennial Committee accepted the restoration of "Ballestone" as one of its major Bicentennial Projects in 1975. A major community fund raising event, "Super Sunday," raised more than $25,000 toward the project and in June 1977, Ballestone was completed, and open to the public.

Furnished in the 1850 period, the mansion is the site of the "Holly Tour" held in December and the focal point for the re-enactment of Civil War Battles both on land and by water.
